

This One's for You

Luke Combs

There's a couple people that I owe a beer or two.
And three or four that I owe more than a few.
For all the times I couldn't find the answers.
Stumbling through the dark without a clue, this one's for you.
Mom and Dad always did thier best, for a crazy fool who couldn't help himself.
I thank god that they were there to see me through.
This one's for you.
I told you all that I'd write you a song.
Pour my heart into the melody, to keep you singing along.
This might not be the right time, these might not be the right lines to prove.
For saying what I'm trying to, but this one's for you.
I've been knocked down time and time again.
Got picked back up by love and a couple of friends.
Who reminded me of all that I stood to lose.
This one's for you.
Yeah, I told you all that I'd write you a song.
Pour my heart into the melody, to keep you singing along.
This might not be the right time, these might not be the right lines to prove.
For saying what I'm trying to, but this one's for you.
Made more than my fare share of the same mistakes.
Bridges burned and lessons learned a few things that I can't change.
Some apologies are way past over due.
So this one's for you.
Well I told you all that I'd write you a song.
Pour my heart into the melody, to keep you signing along.
These may not be the right time, these might not be the right lines to prove.
For saying what I'm trying to, but this one's for you.
There's a couple people that I owe a beer or two.
And three or four that I owe more than a few.
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>