

The Moment Explodes

Idina Menzel & Joe Aaron Reid

The engine stops
The plane drops
The moment explodesA sudden rush
A brood hush
And the moment explodesThe moment explodes
Into thoughts of all the things I've left undone
And flashes from a life I've just begun
Every friend I ever knew or thought I did
The love that I could give, the love I hid
Every stupid life before your eyes cliché
Could I please go out some less expected way but not a life or dying crack those codes
When the moment explodesThe staircase tips
The foot trips
The moment explodesThe dark-rolled curves
The car swerves
And the moment explodes
And the moment explodes
And it reaches to the future and the past
To every moment ever first to last
And every life I reached or could not touch
And everyone I loved or loved too much
And every chance I took or did not take Connections that I made or did not make
But I'll ever take those turns to other roads
Once the moment
When the moment
When the momentThe engine stops
The plane drops
The moment explodes
