

C.A.N.C.E.R

Architects

No one knows permanence quite like you
There's a ruthlessness in all that you do
This is not about what we deserve
There's no bias in the misery served
C.A.N.C.E.R

So watch the sun sink into the sea
There is a perfect peace but don't wait up for me
When we all fade away
And this world can't bare another day
There will be no fight in broken bliss
I feel it now more than ever

A reaper's watch
My life ready to sever
Your name carries more than disease
A symbol of man brought to his knees
This is not about what we deserve
There's no bias in the misery served
C.A.N.C.E.R

When we all fade away
And this world can't bare another day
There will be no fight in broken bliss
Find a little light and hold it close
Don't lose sight, don't lose sight of what matters most
Find a little light and hold it close
Don't lose sight, don't lose sight of what matters most
This is a burden we all carry together
Waiting in the wings, so we never say never.

And when we all fade away
And this world can't bare another day
There will be no fight in broken bliss
So watch the sun sink into the sea
There is a perfect peace but don't wait up for me
C.A.N.C.E.R
C.A.N.C.E.R

This is a burden we all carry together
Waiting in the wings, so we never say never.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>