

Frost

Rachael Sage

[Verse One]

The thing that burns me up the most
Is how I tried to do the right thing
I kept my magic at a distance
'Cause logic has a price
The thing that haunts me like a ghost
Is how I squandered all my weakness
I let you think that I was perfect
For that I'll pay the piper
For all this vice, cause I

[Chorus]

Crossed that line, the line reserved for angels
Once you cross that line then you are lost
So best think twice before you break commandments
'Cause forgiveness comes at the highest cost, frost

[Verse Two]

The thing that makes me want to scream
Is how I tried in vain to fight this
I could have plunged headfirst into it
But that would have been cruel
I crocheted secrets like a blanket
I let you think that I was happy
We let life fall all around us
Like leaves upon the ground
Hardly make a sound, 'till you

[Chorus]

Crossed that line, the line reserved for angels
Once you cross that line then you are lost
So best think twice before you break commandments
'Cause forgiveness comes at the highest cost, frost

[Bridge]

Some people think there is no time
That everything's already happened
I knew I'd fail you from the moment that I
Looked into your eyes
Still you approached me with conviction

No sense of doubt in your reflection
Harbored none of my hesitation
In spite of Fate's surprise

And so I wait for your response
I know my destiny's in your hands
I don't expect it to come easy
I know I'll get what I deserve
The only question that I have now, is
Do you think that I've been childish
Or is it part of growing wiser
To reckon with your flaws, when you

[Chorus]

Crossed that line, the line reserved for angels
Once you cross that line then you are lost
So best think twice before you break commandments
'Cause forgiveness comes at the highest cost, frost

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songlyrics.band/>